PROFESSIONAL and RESEARCH INTERESTS

Professional and Research Interests

I utilize primarily qualitative methodologies to conduct practice-led research that engages the following intersecting aspects of counselling and spiritual care practice.

- The professional training and formation of ministry generalists and counseling specialists for the work of spiritual care and/or counseling.
- The formation and maintenance of the therapeutic alliance with individuals, couples, and families.
- The Human-AI relationship and its implications for teaching and ministry.
- Counselling those who perpetrate or have experienced abuse within families and intimate relationships.

I also utilize historical and contemporary models of theological reflection and theological integration to explore the interface of faith, spirituality and theology with the practice of spiritual care and counselling and to reflect theologically on subject of marriage and family.
